

REMARKABLE GROWTH OF THE Y. M. C. A.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

A prominent worker in the Young Men's Christian association has said that it could answer the roll call of a recreation club, a hotel, a church, a university, a gymnasium, a real estate corporation or a home, and prove its claim to any of these names. This society owns over 500 club houses, and the value of its land and buildings in the United States alone is over $42,000,000. In almost every city it has facilities for entertaining transient guests in a fashion as good and less expensive than the average hotel; it is prepared to conduct religious services when and where they are needed; it is educating a body of students 39,000 strong, who can be admitted on certificate to scores of colleges; it has gymnasiums so thoroughly equipped and under such exceptional instruction that Dr. Anderson of Yale not long ago remarked: "They are the finest body of specialists in physical training in the world."

What I like about your work, said President Roosevelt to a body of men representing the Y. M. C. A., "is that you mix religion with common sense." This is done by the very old and simple method of being a friend and comrade where one is needed, by helping the man himself, by caring for the body and mind as well as for the soul, by proving that it is best to do our work in the most conscientious fashion, and to continually be fitting ourselves for better work. The manner in which this great organization is realizing its aims is shown by the statement that if the boys in all the departments could be brought together, they would make an army more than twice as large as that commanded by Hood when he was opposing Sherman in Georgia.

Are you a stranger, eager for work and capable of doing your best when it is offered? Go to the nearest Y. M. C. A. building, and see what the employment agency can do for you. You can lodge there for the night, have your bath and a good meal, and be ready to face the world again after a good night's rest. You want to improve your spare time, studying for some better position, or to rise in your own trade? The Y. M. C. A. has night and day classes that embrace all the English branches, mathematics, the sciences, business courses, law, oratory, mechanics, art, the foreign languages—everything, in fact, that schools, colleges and universities may offer, and the tuition is free to those who have paid small annual fees of about fifteen dollars.

Boston, Detroit and several other large cities have added a course for chauffeurs to the regular curriculum. Everywhere there is specializing in different branches as the need arises, for the one great thing about the Y. M. C. A. is that broadness of spirit which makes it modify its aims to meet the needs of the people whom it serves. Near Denver, for example, there is a sixty-acre farm where association members with tuberculosis are sent and offered a good chance to fight the disease with fresh air, sunshine and friendly companionship to help them.

Are you a foreigner? Whether you have come from some Y. M. C. A. club in the old country or not, your chances are better for assimilating American ideas if you are thrown with the men of the association over here. In Troy, N. Y., there are ten nationalities in one club, eagerly studying American history and familiarizing themselves with the growth and aims of American institutions. In New York there is a $100,000 building for Frenchmen alone. At De Kalb, Ill., there is a school maintained by the Y. M. C. A. for the American Pims.

If you are a railroad man you know the many places along your route where a fellow, tired and dirty after a long and nerve-racking run, can drop in and have a bath, a good dinner and a quiet smoke in the billiard room. This is the best substitute there is for your home on the other end of the line. You and the other 10,000 railroad men have no such lodging place as this thirty years ago. Nobody seemed to care then whether you rested or not, just so you were in time for the work next day. No wonder that some of the men drank, and with veiled eyes and unsteady hands rushed past danger signals to strew the line with appalling wrecks.

Are you a worker in a mine or factory? Then at noon when you get out your dinner pail some pleasant, earnest fellow may drop in and ask you some questions. "Have you a good place to spend your evenings? Wouldn't you like to come over to the gymnasium and have a swim, or do a stunt on the parallel bars, or hear the new piano, or see the stereoscopic views? Anyway, it's a good place to rest awhile before bedtime." He knows you are tired and perhaps lonely, and you will do well to accept the invitation.

Are you a college student? There are 54,000 of your age and with your ambitions who have already affiliated themselves with the work of the Y. M. C. A., and are eagerly helping others. They, too, have not been at this long. The intercollegiate movement was started in 1877. Before that time boys were allowed to fight out their loneliness and strangeness and homesickness alone. As early as 1858 the State universities of Michigan and Virginia organized student bodies of the Y. M. C. A., but the great growth of the work has been of more recent years.

Are you a soldier or a sailor? Then you know the work. The tents you went to write your letters home from Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines and various other camps during the Spanish-American war were generally furnished by the Y. M. C. A. Last year they sent out something like eighty tons of magazines for your use. Japan can testify to the efficiency of the association work in the army. At first the Government refused to allow them on the field. Then a few were permitted to go, and when the value of their help was recognized, Kuroki and Oyama went in person to the tents and asked for further help of this kind, while the emperor sent his personal check for $5,000 to further the work.

At nearly all the street car barns in the United States the Y. M. C. A. forces have fitted up work rooms to be occupied by conductors and motormen during their spare moments. There are over 200,000 clerks and mechanics numbered among the members of the organization at this time. The colored department has more than doubled its attendance in the past six years, and now owns property to the value of $150,000. In India, A. J. Tibbets, or "Walking Horse," has organized more than forty associations among his own people, the Sioux.

Like the Salvation Army, the Y. M. C. A. had its origin in England. Two clerks in a carpet store, lonely country boys who had come to London to make their way, decided to establish a club where young men of good character could come together for mutual benefit and entertainment. These two boys were George Williams and Edward Beumont. They called a meeting of their fellow clerks and put the plan before them. The idea was hooted at first, but finally ten members were secured and the first meeting was held in a garret. That was June 6, 1844. The club outgrew the garret in a short time. In seven years the movement had spread to Scotland, Ireland, Canada and the United States. The first association on this side of the ocean was formed in Boston in 1851, and in 1901, a jubilee anniversary was held in that city with 3000 delegates from the United States and foreign lands. Today there are in America over 400,000 members, and of this number 65,000 are boys under the age of 18. In the rest of the world there are about 300,000.

On account of its practical ideas the work has spread with great rapidity. In Cuba, President Palma was one of the charter members. In Russia Prince Peter of Oldenburg, brother-in-law of the Czar, is the head of the Association. In Manila 300 Americans and natives pass daily in and out of the clubhouse there. There are sixteen secretaries from the United States, assisted by forty-six native secretaries, at work in the foreign fields, with centers in such places as Buenos Ayres, City of Mexico, Melbourne, Seoul, Calcutta, Shanghai and Yokohama. The Government of India and Japan not only give financial aid to the work, but recognize the Y. M. C. A. as a potent and essential factor in the development of their country.

When money is needed, it is either given by the public or earned by the Association. They are building a new clubhouse every five days, and it takes money to do it. Sherman, Tex., needed $31,000, and raised it in two weeks. London, recently raised $70,000 in a short while. Baltimore raised $500,000 in thirty days, and Richmond, Va., raised $225,000 in the same length of time. Portland, Or., now wants a new building, and judging from the usual enterprising way in which that city does things, it will not be satisfied with anything short of a fine one.

Membership is increased as rapidly as money is raised. Topeka, Kan., added 502 members in one day, and Decatur, Ill., added 611 members in the same time. Newport News, Va., doubled its membership in one day. The most cosmopolitan club in the world is perhaps the Y. M. C. A. building in Washington. Its membership is drawn from all over the country, and its visitors from all over the world. Its building in the capital city is said to be the most complete of its kind in existence.

"The Telegraph in America" will be the topic for Mr. Haskin's letter in The Tribune of Tuesday.
